3D CLAY PRINTING SPOTLIGHTED IN EXHIBITION, DEMONSTRATION AND TALKS AT THE LONDON DESIGN FESTIVAL 2021

SPONSORED BY PRESTON FITZGERALD ARTS ADVISORY

Preston Fitzgerald is a London-based authority on contemporary ceramics, craft and design. He curates and manages art and design exhibitions. In particular, he specialises in championing both the works of emerging artists and nascent design trends in contemporary craft. He is currently turning the spotlight on 3D clay printing where some talented artists are blending digital technology and their artistic craft skills to stretch what can be done with clay to create some truly mind-boggling new ceramics.

At The London Design Festival, he brings together established and emerging artists using 3D clay printing to exhibit works worthy of collecting. Works range from functional wares to sculpture. Artists will also share their perspective on innovating one of the world's oldest art forms in on-line talks throughout the festival.

Makers in the exhibition are Jonathan Keep, Nico Conti, Michelle Shields, Heleen Sintobin, Ryan Barrett, Fred Gwatkin, Edgar Ward, Joana Schmitz, Leora Honeyman and James Rogers.
