

Luxxica presents “Wine, People & Objects” A Sculptural Exhibition Celebrating the People of the UK Wine World , But Can You Tell Who’s Who?

As part of London Design Festival 2025

This September, London-based ceramic artist Luxxica presents Wine, People & Objects, a sculptural exhibition celebrating the individuals who shape and savour the world of wine. Running from 15–21 September 2025 in Shoreditch, London, the exhibition is part of the official London Design Festival Partner Programme.

The show features 28 handcrafted sculptural wine objects, each one inspired by a different person from across the UK wine scene, ranging from wine growers and makers to sommeliers, importers, and enthusiasts. Each object is paired with an illustration and a short story, inviting visitors to engage in a playful and reflective matching game: can you guess which story belongs to which object and person?

The concept began with a simple question: "If your story, personality, and place in the wine world were translated into an object, what would it be?" Participants responded in beautifully personal ways: one saw themselves as a wine decanter that helps people open up; another, as a quirky glass that brings joy to the room; others imagined bottles shaped entirely their own way. These insights were sculpted into tactile, poetic forms that reflect the personalities behind the pour.

“Wine is never just wine. It carries people, stories, places, and moods,” says Luxxica. “Through this project, I want to slow people down and remind them that behind every bottle, there’s a human story worth savouring.”

She also shares why wine, specifically, became the focus of her work. “Growing up, my mum always set a beautiful table and there was always a wine bottle in the centre, even if we weren’t drinking. That bottle became a symbol of warmth, celebration, and connection in my mind. Now, I want to create that feeling for others by creating objects that hold not just wine, but stories, good memories, and the essence of togetherness.”

Activities & Celebration

Throughout the exhibition week, Luxxica will also host interactive experiences, including:

- Sip & Paint sessions
- T-shirt painting with wine

Both workshops are artist-led and open to the public.

The programme will culminate in a Closing Celebration on Sunday, 21st September, where visitors will have the opportunity to meet many of the people who inspired the objects and share a glass of wine with them.
