Presents:

'A Folly Through the Trees'

The environment we live in today is increasingly untethered. Good is presented as evil, and evil as good; lawless leaders prevail, and uncanny fake realities surround us. The future is uncertain, the present is troubled, and the past is not what we once believed. How do we create a foundation for our existence without a pillar to lean on?

The digital and the real are becoming increasingly blurred. The work in this show seeks to offer an escape from our untethered reality into a tangible fantasy. It is a rejection of the unreal—grounded instead in purely human, authentic fantasy.

The show is conceived as a diorama: a landscape constructed from sculpture and functional objects. A broken fence, a standing tree, and a folly in a clearing are just a few of the elements used to create an abstraction of the artist's own imagined perfect place.

Six Dots Design presents an immersive show of sculpture and objects designed to pull us out of our uncanny lives and into a real fantasy.
