SCP Clerkenwell Green Interiors by Nice Projects

Designed by Nice Projects, SCP Clerkenwell Green occupies a beautifully accommodated townhouse in the heart of Clerkenwell. Spanning five floors, the showroom has been meticulously planned to create a seamless visitor experience with retail on the ground floor, a dedicated lighting department on the lower ground floor and showroom spaces on the floors above. An external courtyard, ideal for showcasing outdoor products, connects SCP's offices in a separate building at the rear of the site. Also designed by Nice Projects, the office building features a space to host clients with a full materials and samples library.

Each individual space is tailored to showcase different aspects of SCP's world. From sustainable upholstery, furniture, lighting and textiles, to design-led accessories, iconic industrial design, collectible design and art, and a selection of hand-picked design curiosities.

Dittico by Martino Gamper

Dittico is a collection of vases developed in collaboration between London-based designer Martino Gamper and Italian manufacturing giants, Bitossi Ceramiche. The project stems from the encounter between the designer's formal research and the historical identity of the manufactory, moving in balance between design freedom and the ceramic DNA that has defined the Bitossi language for over a century.

Very Simple: Kitchen produces modular kitchens built from stainless steel or recycled steel. Defined by clarity of construction and a pared-back aesthetic, the system offers a practical alternative to conventional fitted kitchens, with modules that can be specified, rearranged and adapted over time.

The launch is being presented in both the showroom and new event space for London Design Festival 2026, showcasing the versatility of the collection across residential, workplace and outdoor settings.
