

mama's bricks

Mama's Bricks is a London-based studio specialising in custom-designed ceramic bricks for interior and architectural applications. The collection is developed for designers and architects seeking distinctive surface solutions that bring depth, texture, and a strong material identity to their projects.

Mama's Bricks introduces a level of character and individuality that mass-produced materials cannot replicate. Each piece is handmade and carefully designed, resulting in subtle variations in form, colour, and surface that give every installation a unique presence. The bricks are conceived not only as building components, but as expressive design elements that enhance the overall atmosphere of a space.

The collection focuses on bespoke ceramic modules, available in a range of terracotta tones and custom glazed finishes. Shapes, colours, and patterns can be tailored to suit the specific needs of each project, allowing designers to create personalised compositions for feature walls, partitions, screens, and decorative architectural details. This flexibility makes Mama's Bricks particularly suitable for projects where material expression plays a central role.

Mama's Bricks is well suited to high-end hospitality and residential interiors, including hotels, restaurants, private residences, and cultural spaces. The ceramic surfaces add warmth, texture, and a refined handmade quality that elevates both contemporary and timeless interiors. Used as a focal point or as part of a larger material palette, the bricks offer a sophisticated finish that stands out through craftsmanship and detail.

Designed and produced in London, Mama's Bricks combines traditional ceramic techniques with a contemporary design approach. The studio works closely with interior designers and architects to develop custom solutions that respond to each project's concept, scale, and aesthetic goals. From early design stages through to final production, Mama's Bricks offers a collaborative and flexible process.

By merging craftsmanship, custom design, and material experimentation, Mama's Bricks provides a unique ceramic surface solution that adds value, personality, and distinction to interior architecture.
